

Please Avoid Puppy Mills & Breeders

Why breed more when so many lovable shelter animals already need a home?

Some of the reasons to avoid dog breeding operations:

- 1) The breeding females often don't have recovery time between litters. After their reproductive years are over, they are killed or sold to unknown fates.
- 2) The dogs aren't adequately socialized with other dogs or people, causing them to be aggressive, often resulting in them being abandoned to shelters.
- 3) Inhumane conditions, substandard veterinary care, and overcrowding leads to sick animals who have genetic and emotional problems.
